If I navigate between them the event listeners keep being added. I want to remove the event listeners if I navigate away from my page. is there a way to remove the event listeners without using a bridge (I don't want that overhead)? A: The event listeners are attached to the element, regardless of if it's scoped or not. You will need to unsubscribe the listeners. You do this as you would with any other DOM method. Example for attaching: `this.$element.addEventListener('my-event', listener);` Example for unsubscribing: `this.$element.removeEventListener('my-event', listener);` Q: How do I get list of applications in Android? This is my code: `ArrayList apps = (ArrayList) getPackageManager().`
